Nearly 11,000 SF Of Warehouse Cleaned Per Day To Reopen Foam Factory After Fire Stops Production

FGS The Restoration Company was called on a Thursday by a general contractor to assist with the mitigation and cleaning of this more than 300,000 SF warehouse space. Fire had spread smoke and soot throughout the gigantic building. We met with Mike McVickor, the General Manager and Bill Bowen the Vice President of Flexible Foam, Inc. to discuss how to tackle the enormous project. Rick Ballweg, Vice President of FGS The Restoration Company, and his estimating team worked well into the night on Thursday to provide an estimate to complete the project. Rick Ballweg met the managers of the plant on Saturday morning to devise a game plan.

On Monday morning FGS The Restoration Company had a team of 40 cleaners on site. In addition to our team, the employees of Flexible Foam, Inc. worked to clean the highly specialized manufacturing equipment. FGS The Restoration Company's team worked to clean and paint the remaining space. This was far from an ordinary job, one room was bigger than a football field and had ceilings 53 feet high. There was an army

"There was a point we didn't think it could be done in 4 weeks and FGS The Restoration Company did it, and did it well. The can do, will do attitude of FGS The Restoration Company's team made the process go fast. I appreciated their willingness to work with my employees."

The Plant Manager at Flexible Foam, Inc. set a goal to have production up and running in 4 weeks. FGS The Restoration Company extracted water from the loading dock and chemical storage room, put protection tarps over equipment, washed the walls, ceiling beams and floors. FGS The Restoration Company also had to replace some carpet and tiles in the office area. In addition, we dried, deodorized and repacked a semi load of important documents. In conclusion, we had staff members there in two different shifts ensuring that we would be done on time. The plant was able to reopen within the allowed 4 weeks.
